

A SUPERHERO

By Geoff Serpell

Four-year-old Blake was excited after his first day at pre-school.

"What did you do?" I asked.

"I was a superhero," he said emphatically.

Not seeing any superhero costume on him, I assumed he'd been playing a game.

"How do you do that?" I asked.

"A girl was upset and crying," he explained. "I helped her, and she stopped crying. That's what superheroes do. They help people."

If ever you wondered what it takes to be a superhero, take Blake's advice. They help people.

GIFTS AND DONATIONS

Gifts, major donations & trusts – help the work of the Church today

Gifts can take many forms, including cash, shares, real or things such as valuable paintings. Some people choose to establish a trust which commences during their lifetime, others choose to establish a testamentary gift (bequest) in their will, others as a memorial to a loved one.
